Final Agreements Reached For Firm To Locate Here

OILJAK Manufacturing Co., Inc., of Montclair, N. J., is moving to Stroudsburg, officials of the firm announced yesterday. The company, which manufactures various types of dispensers, display racks and similar other items, will be located off Stroudsburg's W. Main St. (Route 209) on the site of a former golf driving range. The Oiljak company, Pocono Chamber of Commerce and Pocono Mountains Industries worked hand-in-hand for the past three years to bring in this new industry. It is expected that more than 175 people will be employed by the firm. The firm will be situated on a tract of land covering approximately 1200 feet frontage. The building itself will occupy 98,000 square feet including all the necessary departments. The property was formerly owned by Robert Christman. Officers of the new firm are: Lester C. Vannam, president; George Persak, vice president; Miss Gertrude Oswald, treasurer, and Edward McManus, assistant secretary. The general contract for just the company's building is expected to be $500,000; the complete project will run close to

$1,000,000. Collins and Maxwell Contractors, Easton, is contractor for the factory. The official signing and sealing of necessary papers took place at the Penn-Stroud Hotel on June 22. The company officials, Pocono Mountains Industries, Collins and Maxwell Contractors Co., engineers and Chamber of Commerce met to transact the arrangements. Collins and Maxwell Construction Co., with Edgar L. Sales, president and John B. Aicher, engineer presented layouts and blueprints of the proposed building. Montgomery F. Crowe, president of Chamber of Commerce, and Martin S. Baldwin, secretary, signed for the local interest. Edgar L. Sales, president, and John B. Aicher, engineer, signed for construction firm; Oiljak president Vannam and McManus affixed their signatures for the New Jersey firm. Closing Transactions The closing transactions for the relocation of the Montclair, N. J. firm were completed yesterday morning. Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority, in the person of Paul Perry, advanced a $177,000 second mortgage loan to Pocono Mountains Industries. This represented an industrial development loan from state funds. The loan was previously approved by PIDA. The state funds provided for the project are 30 percent of the total of $580,000. Fifty percent is being provided by local banks and 20 percent by local individuals and concerns. The final agreements were completed in the law offices of Bensinger and Bensinger and also of Shull and Kilton, of Stroudsburg. The Bensinger firm represented the Pocono Mountains Industries and Shull and Kilton in the final contract signing, represented local banks. Agreements state that Pocono Mountains Industries purchase the land and build the factory for Oiljak. Oiljak firm has bought the proposed building and land subject to the mortgages of the three local banks totaling some $295,000. The local banks are First National, Monroe Security and Trust, and East Stroudsburg National Bank. In addition to the three, there is a mortgage to PIDA for $177,000 and another to the Pocono Chamber of Commerce for $118,000.

Operator Killed DUNMORE, Pa. (AP) — Tons of coal dust broke loose in a Wyoming coal company dump Tuesday, killing 46-year-old John Patrick. Operating a bulldozer type scoop with an overhead loader, he was taking a load to a truck when the avalanche crashed down. Is Jaunty And Cheerful NEW YORK (AP) — A jaunty and cheerful Herbert Hoover basked in the glow of thousands of letters of praise from Americans as he approached what he termed a "bipartisan" birthday. The former president is 86 today. But for him the day will be just like most others in the past—full of work. His eight full-time secretaries will attest to that. He reluctantly bowed to press demands for a birthday eve interview in his Waldorf-Astoria Hotel suite. "I had not intended to have a press conference this birthday. I thought we had done that stunt often enough. However, that idea met many protests," he said with a smile. Then, his blue eyes twinkling, he good-naturedly spent nearly an hour complying with photographers' requests and delving into both past and future for the benefit of reporters. He was by turns serious and light-hearted in response to questions. His slight deafness proved his only apparent difficulty. His chief secretary, Miss Bernice A. Miller, sometimes had to repeat questions. In the course of his observations, the former Republican president: Voiced pleasure that younger men are taking a leading part in politics because "they have vigor and new ideas." Declared firmly that "I don't believe this Republic is in its decline and fall."

PUC Orders More Data From Bell Co.

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania Tuesday was ordered by the Public Utility Commission to submit within two weeks additional financial data on its operations.

The PUC action was taken in line with its decision to investigate Bell operations to see if the firm is earning an excessive return. The commission also is looking into the earnings of the state's major electrical utilities.

After an informal, closed-door discussion with Bell President W. D. Gillen and other company officials, PUC Chairman Leon Schwartz of Nanticoke said:

"On the basis of the figures submitted by Bell, their earnings would appear to be justified."

But he added, "It still appears that the company is over the line." He said it was "apparent that further study would be necessary because the figures under analysis are so voluminous and complex."

Another Meeting

He said another meeting with company representatives will be held after the PUC studies the new material to be turned over by the utility.

U.S. 'Will Not' Be Deflected By Soviet Threats, Says Herter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter warned the Soviet Union Tuesday against gambling on an election-year paralysis in U. S. foreign policy to start some new crisis in world affairs.

Within the hour, after Herter spoke out at a news conference, the United States rejected a Soviet protest against supplying Polaris missiles — with nuclear warhead capability — to West Germany as a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

This country and its allies, a note delivered in Moscow declared, "will not be deflected" by the Soviet rocket-rattling threats from taking whatever defense measures they consider necessary for their security.

Under Consideration

In a note July 19, Moscow had told Washington it understood West Germany was to receive Polaris missiles, which have a movable firing base and a range of more than 1,000 miles. Actually officials said that supplying Polaris squadrons to NATO was under consideration but no one knew whether they would in fact go to West Germany. The missiles will not be ready for distribution for about two years.

The conjunction of Herter's news conference statement and the note bearing on NATO armament defined and projected a tough U. S. line toward the Soviets for the rest of the Eisenhower administration — always barring some change in Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's hostile attitude toward the United States.

Herter said the United States has proved repeatedly that it could meet foreign challenges with "speed, force and unity" in an election year, and that the U.S.S.R. should "take warning" that this is true in 1960.

In support, he cited U.S. reaction to the Red blockade of West Berlin in 1948 and noted the NATO pact was signed that year. He also pointed out that the Roosevelt administration in 1940 made the destroyers-for-bases deal with Britain and Congress voted the Selective Service Act.

"Today," Herter solemnly told his news conference, "our two major political parties are united in working wholeheartedly with our friends throughout the world and showing a common and resolute front to opponents who seek to destroy our way of life."

He took off for the Court House . . . to register for the important Presidential Election in November . . . Only 34 more days to act before the deadline.

May Close Churches In Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's highest active Roman Catholic authority declared Tuesday he will close all Catholic churches on the island unless the Castro regime avers anti-church demonstrations and guarantees freedom of worship. He said the church would operate "in silence" — as it does in some places behind the Communist iron curtain.

The warning was angrily issued by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Evelio Diaz, archbishop, coadjutor of Havana. It came shortly after the top ranking priest in Castro's army had intervened to stop an impending clash between churchgoers and a gang of jeering youths outside Havana Cathedral.

The Rev. Ekgio Sardinas, chaplain of the revolutionary army, sent most of the churchgoers and demonstrators home before any serious injuries could be inflicted.

A church source said Msgr. Diaz told government officials: "If there are no guarantees of safety for churchgoers, all churches will be closed tomorrow morning and the church will be declared in silence so that the whole world will know what is happening in Cuba."

Msgr. Diaz' warning — which brought no immediate official response — pointed up the seriousness of a growing church-government dispute centering on the leftward march of the Fidel Castro regime.

Were Warned

The island's Roman Catholic hierarchy warned in a pastoral letter read in churches last Sunday against "the increasing advance of Communism in Cuba."

The church source said Msgr. Diaz made a telephone call to the presidential palace during the peak of the demonstration. He later drove to the palace and conferred 25 minutes with Luis Buch, ministry of the presidency.

He appeared angry after leaving the palace, and declined comment on the meeting. A subsequent palace communiqué said only that he had paid a visit. The cathedral incident occurred after a high mass in honor of Cuban priests.

Msgr. Diaz has taken over administration of the Catholic church in Cuba because of the poor health of Manuel Cardinal Arceaga, 80.

At least two priests were detained by police during the demonstration, the church source reported. They were identified as the Rev. Agnelo Blanco, coadjutor of the Parish of Charity, and the Rev. Fernando Arango, chief advisor to the Catholic Youth Workers. The reasons for their detentions were not disclosed.

Soviet Report Says Powers 'Pleads Guilty'

By The Associated Press MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet authorities announced Tuesday that Francis Gary Powers has "pleaded guilty to the essence of the charge" that he flew a U2 spy plane over Soviet territory on an intelligence mission for the United States.

The official Soviet news agency, Tass, distributed the text of an indictment quoting Powers, 30, as saying:

"I plead guilty to the fact that I have flown over the territory and over the points indicated on the chart, turned on and off the necessary controls of the special equipment mounted aboard my plane. This, I believe, was done with the aim of collecting intelligence information about the Soviet Union."

Powers is scheduled to go on trial Aug. 17 on the charges arising from the May 1 incident, when he parachuted from his crippled plane over the Ural mountains. The incident raised an official Soviet storm culminating in the explosion of the four-power summit meeting in Paris May 16 before it could get started.

A public show trial seemed to be in prospect. The great hall of columns, not far from the Kremlin, was being polished up for the trial, although no formal announcement has been made as yet.

Five Languages

Reports in Moscow are that the trial will be conducted with simultaneous translations into five languages for the benefit of the world press.

The 4,000-word indictment was drawn up by the State Security Committee and approved July 9 by Roman Rudenko, prosecutor general of the U.S.S.R. He was the chief Soviet prosecutor at the postwar Neurnberg war crimes trials of Nazi leaders.

The indictment accuses the Pound, Va., flier of violating the Soviet law "on criminal responsibility for state crimes." The penalty under this law can be anything from seven years imprisonment to death by shooting.

Soviet authorities have refused U.S. diplomatic officials permission to talk to Powers or to permit an American lawyer to defend him. They have granted visas to his parents, however, to attend the trial.

The indictment bitterly attacked President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter for their statements concerning the U2 incident, and singled out Vice President Richard M. Nixon as "especially brazen and shameless."

Those American statements, the indictment said, elevated violations of Soviet territory to "a principle of state policy of the United States." It called this an "open declaration of the refusal of the United States government to comply with fundamental, universally recognized standards of international law."

The indictment accused the United States of "repeated intrusions" over a period of years.

It added that there was no guarantee that "any such planes appearing over Soviet territory does not carry a deadly load," and that thus the flights jeopardized world peace.

The indictment reviewed what it described as questions put to Powers and the flier's answers. It did not say when this was done, but Premier Nikita Khrushchev said in a May 7 speech Powers already had confessed to spying.

AF Displays Atlas Rocket Performances

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force demonstrated the range versatility and accuracy of its Atlas missile, firing one of the giant rockets more than 7,000 miles into Atlantic waters off the coast of South Africa Tuesday.

The blazing 40-minute flight carried the Atlas to a point about 1,200 miles southeast of British-owned St. Helena Island and about 200 miles west of the South African mainland.

Earlier, the National Space Agency postponed until Wednesday an attempt to launch into orbit a 100-foot balloon communications satellite. Technical problems with the Thor-Delta carrier rocket delayed the effort.

The Air Force, in announcing the Atlas success, reported the Conqair-missile flew its prescribed course. The exact range and accuracy were not revealed.

The distance, second longest yet covered by the Atlas, lies between the missile's normal range of 6,325 miles and the record 9,000 miles traveled by one of the rockets last May 20.

Rebels Seize Laos Capital

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—An army group seized military and civil power in Vientiane, capital of Laos, asked all foreign soldiers to leave, and proclaimed a neutral foreign policy for the kingdom Tuesday.

Reported cut off 100 miles to the north in Luang Prabang was pro-Western Premier Tiao Samsonith and his government of this tiny country that has lived largely on the bounty of the United States.

While the extent of the coup was in doubt, diplomatic advisers left no doubt that the rebels were in firm control of Vientiane, the administrative capital, as distinct from Luang Prabang, the royal capital.

Uncertain

The diplomatic reports said Vientiane was functioning normally except for military road blocks. The rebels staged their coup d'etat in the early morning darkness with a burst of gunfire that killed two persons.

Col. Souvanna Phommavong, commander-in-chief of the U.S.- and French-trained armed forces, reportedly was wounded by a bullet fire. But diplomatic reports did not say whether his wounds were fatal.

Chief Threatens He May Invade Katanga Area

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) —Katanga's rebellious government agreed conditionally Tuesday to admit the U.N. soldiers it once barred with a threat of war. But Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba threatened to invade Katanga province with his own and other African soldiers.

The tentative capitulation to the U.N. was announced by provincial Premier Moise Tshombe at his capital, Elisabethville. He listed nine conditions, primarily aimed at seeing that Lumumba's central government is not given a hand in Katanga affairs.

The break came on a day which saw:

1. A U.N. Security Council order for immediate replacement of Belgian soldiers in the rich, independence-minded province with units from the U.N. forces of Swedish Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn.

2. A Belgian assent to the order, with qualification as to the time of the Belgian withdrawal. A Brussels official said Belgium intends to comply fully, but the withdrawal will come only as the safety of Belgian civilians is assured.

3. A declaration by Lumumba's government of a state of emergency—a modified form of martial law. Though U.N. soldiers are on the job in five of the Congo's six provinces, Lumumba called the fledgling, once-mutinous Congolese army back to regular duty and gave it "all power . . . to restore order." He said, "The army will arrest anybody, black or white, who disturbs order in the Congo."

4. Final lowering of Belgium's red, yellow and black flag over the Belgian embassy in Leopoldville. This signalled the departure—to Congolese jeers—of Belgian Ambassador Jean Van den Bosch, whom Lumumba's government had denounced as an unwanted meddling in Congolese affairs.

Tshombe said, before entering a cabinet meeting at Elisabethville Tuesday, that he is still opposed to U.N. intervention. Doubts of the premier were reflected in his conditions. Among them, as outlined at a news conference, were:

"That none of the U.N. troops come from Communist or Communist-influenced countries . . .

"That all rights and internal affairs of Katanga be recognized and that the United Nations do not intervene in any way . . .

"That Katanga holds the right to prohibit the entry into Katanga of any person or body from the Congo government of Premier Patrice Lumumba . . ."

To compete with Japanese industry, which exported 40 million lighters to the United States last year, Aronson pointed out that over $500,000 had been spent on new equipment for the Delaware Water Gap plant since that 110,000 square-foot, $1,100,000 building was completed in the Fall of 1957.

These outlays, he said, were aimed at controlling costs and improving efficiency. They also complemented the company's greatly increased expenditures on research and development, which is responsible for the new and highly successful line of butane lighters.

Progressive Policy As production increased, Aronson said, the company would continue its present progressive policy with respect to employee benefits. He said that Delaware Water Gap personnel now had one of the most liberal group insurance and medical coverage plans.

The cost of these benefits, exclusive of salaries, he said, came to more than $300,000 a year — or over 5 percent of last year's net lighter sales of approximately $5,000,000 in the United States.

Wherever possible, Aronson added, Ronson also would continue its past policy of advancing employees in management from within the organization. As examples, he cited the promotions of Gerald Brodsky, plant manager; Walter Mikos, superintendent; Jay Martin, purchasing agent; Morton Chaber, new manager of the Liquid Packaging Division; Fred Reinhold, quality control manager; John Lazo, chief accountant; Sidney Cohen, engineering manager; and Maurice Fleisher, chief industrial engineer.

Ruffles, Half Moons, Split Seams Note Nurses' Caps

Fifth in Series
RUFFLES, half moons, split seams, or what have you. All this and much more is distinguished in the many, many shapes of registered nurses' caps.

During the course of the first four series, this feature illustrated just a few of hundreds of individual designs. This fifth in a series of nurses' headwear is no exception.

The current series stresses six additional modes that may appear similar to others previously featured, but there is a world of difference.

Somewhere in the cap's style is a design that sets it off from the others. It may be difficult to find, but it is incorporated into the cap's make-up.

This special Daily Record series will try to aid you in easily identifying the school from which the nurse was graduated. The white, dainty, headpiece signifies the R. N.'s Alma Mater, as does a school ring or perhaps a fraternity pin.

It is a proud feature — the wearing of this cap — and this newspaper is proud to publicize the various designs.

All photographs were taken at Monroe County General Hospital, East Stroudsburg by staff photographer Roderick G. MacLeod.

Ronson Head Predicts Rise In Lighter Sales In 1961

DESPITE his optimism over domestic lighter sales in the years ahead, Aronson observed that the Delaware Water Gap plant was not yet operating on as profitable a basis as other Ronson manufacturing divisions.

In that connection, he noted that lighters today account for approximately 34 percent of Ronson's total sales, with electrical appliances (electric shavers, hair dryers and shoe polishers) representing 21 percent, lighter accessories (Ronsonol lighter fluid, flints, etc.), 35 percent, non-consumer products (aircraft and missile parts and Rare Earth Metals and Alloys), 7 percent, and service, 3 percent.

In contrast, Aronson pointed out that in 1952, the year in which Ronson's lighter patents expired, lighter sales produced 88 percent of total volume.

Meet Sales Objective
To meet sales objectives, Aronson underscored the responsibility of supervisory personnel to assist in lowering production costs at the Delaware Water Gap plant. He said this could be affected by greater reductions in direct labor variances, rework and scrap, and by closer adherence to production schedules.

He also asked for a greater awareness of the outside pressures exerted by foreign and domestic competition, as well as by the federal excise tax, which he described as encouraging. In effect, cheap foreign imports while depressing the sales of lighters produced by American labor.

High employee morale, Aronson said, was essential to greater production efficiency. He urged supervisory personnel to stimulate individual pride not only in job performance, but also in the lighter products and in the company itself.

The public image of the Ronson Corp., Aronson said, is being changed from that of a lighter company to that of "a broadly diversified international corporation whose expanding consumer and industrial product lines are backed by a large-scale Research and Development program that assures above-average corporate growth."

This information, Aronson noted, was being effected by the company's adherence to five basic policies, which he set forth in these terms:

"Ronson protects the international prestige of its brand name by stressing top-quality products, aggressive merchandising, and dependable service.

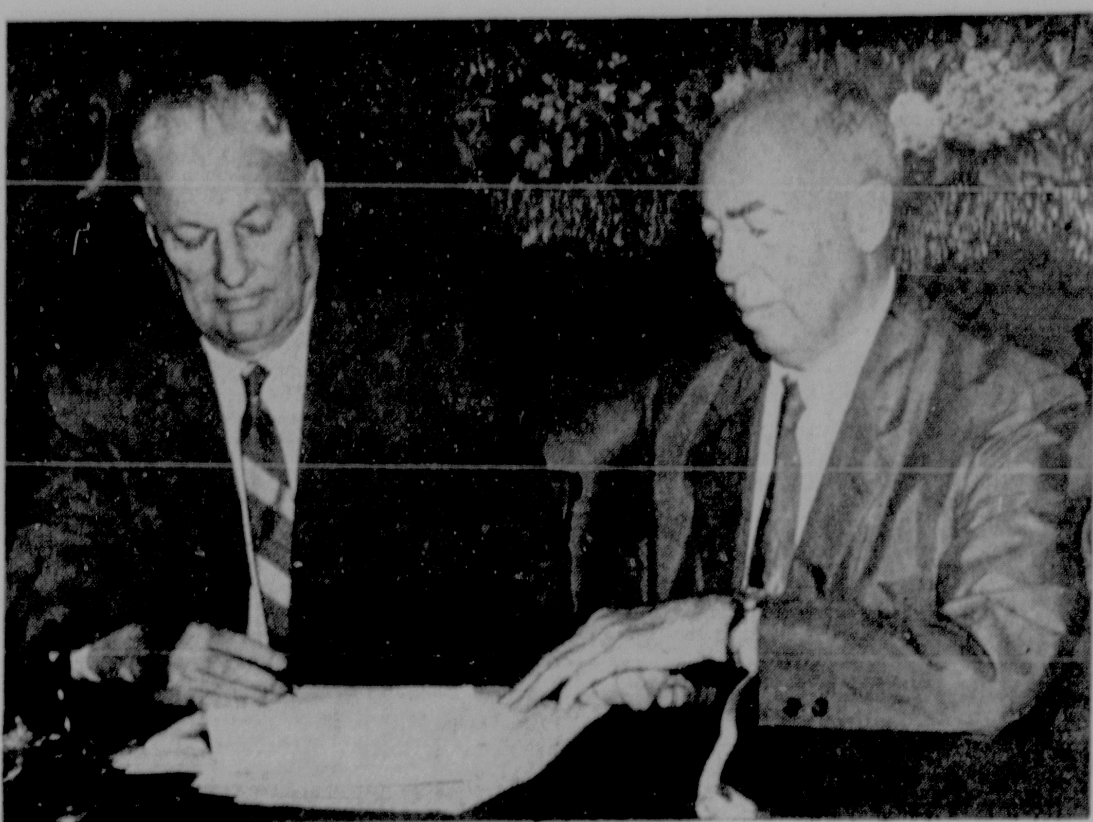

Firm Capitalizes
"Ronson capitalizes on its brand-name and worldwide distribution network by diversifying into other product fields—consumer and non-consumer alike—which show favorable growth and earnings potential.

"Ronson plans for worldwide coverage of its diversified products with new plant expansion to meet growing consumer demands.

"Ronson develops its international organization through centralized policy decisions and decentralization administration for each of its many subsidiaries.

"Ronson plans its expenditures for Research and Development at approximately 7 percent of yearly sales."

Referring to the Delaware Water Gap operation, Aronson stated: "If we strive toward greater production efficiency, we will surely overcome our other difficulties and thereby increase our lighter volume with each succeeding year. With this accomplished, new opportunities are certain to be offered to many who are here tonight, accompanied by greater security for all."

Patterson's Home Memory Of History

THE RUSTIC stone house built in 1795 by Jacob Stroud for his daughter Sarah, when she married James Hollinshead, will be opened to the public Thursday from 2 until 8 p.m.

The house will be opened by the present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Patterson, in cooperation with the Pocono Mountains Art Center, which is sponsoring a tour of historic local homes on Thursday.

orchard. It was known as the Kautz farm in old documents, after passing from the Hollinshead family, and was owned by a long series of owners until the Pattersons acquired it in 1935.

Mrs. Patterson made no attempt to restore it to its original condition, as many changes had been made in the original. The authentic old door opens into a wide hall, floored with random width boards.

The home is scheduled Number Two on the tour of six houses. Tickets may be purchased at the first house, built in 1795 by John Brown at Braeside Ave. and Brown St.

The last stop will be for refreshments at Shawnee Inn, served between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. The tour is part of the 150th Anniversary celebration of the founding of Stroudsburg.

Hospitalized After 3-Car Accident

GREENTOWN — Werner Mueller of New York City was admitted to Physicians Hospital, Jackson Heights, Long Island, yesterday following a three-car crash in which his automobile was demolished.

Mueller, whose marriage to Miss Margaret Duecker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Duecker of Greentown, will take place Aug. 20, sustained cuts and bruises and was admitted to the hospital for further examination.

The accident occurred at a traffic signal when a taxi crashed into the rear of Mueller's car, driving it into an automobile ahead of him.

State Processing $42,923 Payment

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — Payment of $42,923.58 from federal funds to Mount Pocono Airport Authority is being processed by the State Auditor General's Department, the department said yesterday.

The payment is part of a grant of $181,000 made to the local authority by the Federal Aviation Agency for extensive improvements at Mount Pocono Airport, which is located about one mile northwest of Pocono.

Total of the federal grant was half of the estimated cost of $362,000 of the airport project.

Still owing to be paid the local airport authority from federal funds is $19,879.60, according to the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission, through which federal payments are made.

$100,000 Grant

The state commission made a grant of $100,000 as part payment of the cost of the local airport improvement. Of that amount $67,877.45 still remains to be paid on future payments. The remaining sum — about $100,000 — of the total estimated cost of the airport project, was provided from local sources, the commission said.

Improvements being made at the airport include construction of a primary runway, installation of a lighting system, building an access road to the airport and relocation of an electric power line, according to the commission.

Picking Best Man

Secretary of Defense Gates hopes to abandon the system whereby the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is picked in rotation from each of the services, so that he can select the "best man" each time for the post. It is an obviously sound idea.

It points up the difficulty of working under the present Joint Chiefs system in which the jealousies and sensitivities of each service must be considered, regardless of the effect this has on efficiency.

It points up again the basic fallacy of the so-called Unification Act of 1947 which unified the two services into four and divided over-all strategy into separate "missions."

It also raises some questions. If it is sensible to choose the best chairman possible, why is it not equally sensible to select the best missile of a type, rather than let each of the services develop its own missiles, sites and teams?

If it is possible to select the best chairman, on the basis of complex and subtle nuances of personality and ability, would it not be equally possible to choose one best waterproof boot, one best rifle, one best purchasing and distribution agency — all of the myriad things, large and small, that are duplicated by each of the competitive services?

If this were done—and there seems to be no reason why it cannot be done—the Defense Department might increase its efficiency to the point where seven cents of every defense dollar is no longer wasted.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Fidel Casiro's Illness

News of Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba has stirred a furor of speculation. The picture, typically, is not at all clear. The Premier has had pneumonia and he did not take care of himself while he had it. Beyond these facts we get into what the Cubans call "bolas"—rumors of a somewhat wild nature.

The excitement is justified in the sense that Fidel Castro is the "Supreme Leader," as they call him, of Cuba. He runs Cuba today in so far as any one man can run a country. Consequently, if he is forced to drop the reins of power it could make a difference to Cuban policies.

One could not, however, expect any great difference. The two secondary leaders of the Cuban revolution—Fidel's younger brother, Raul Castro, who is Minister of the Armed Forces, and Ernesto (Che) Guevara, who is president of the National Bank—have their positions and power because they are loyal to Dr. Castro and follow policies of which he approves. Neither of them is popular. If anything, they are unpopular. Their power was delegated to them by Premier Castro and depends on him.

Therefore, if Raul Castro becomes an acting premier one can be sure that he will carry on the present policies. So long as Fidel Castro has his faculties he will control the Cuban revolution and he would not have to intervene physically to do so.

The premier said last year that if anything happened to him (he was thinking of assassination) his brother, Raul, would take over. In that case one would, indeed, expect to see a different situation and one that would certainly be even worse for the United States.

The intense interest in Fidel Castro's illness is a measure of the stature he has assumed in world affairs. Whatever one thinks of him, there is no denying that he has made a great impact on the Western Hemisphere.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Badger Game

Physicians, from time to time, write to me, telling me of the badger game of which they suddenly discover themselves victims. Dentists are accused of rapping patients, so that a wise dentist keeps his door open for his nurse or secretary to witness the propriety of his conduct.

And such persons are not particularly good witnesses because they are hired help. It is estimated that one in seven physicians is bothered by malpractice charges, using up their time and their means trying to prove that what they did was correct, what they prescribed was proper.

Nowadays patients read advertisements and medical news items in the press and make demands on physicians, accusing them of malpractice if they do not obey the advertisement. When I was ill in the hospital, I received an enormous mail from readers advising me how to cure a cancer by everything from prayer to electricity.

There are apparently radio stations which give medical advice, some of which can readily kill sick people, but there are thousands who believe that the man on the radio must be truthful or he would not be on the radio!

A physician sent me a clipping on this subject which he cut out of a medical journal, giving neither the name of the publication nor the date. Nevertheless, I quote from it because it contains an extraordinarily good paragraph:

"A physician can be sued if he expresses an unfavorable opinion or a favorable one; if he conceals an error or reveals it; uses a new drug or fails to use one; keeps records or is sloppy about records; discloses a fact about his patient or conceals same — the possibilities are without number."

There ought to be a carefully drawn up code specifying the responsibility of a physician to his patient. I have watched a physician go step-by-step to discover the cause for an unusually large number of white blood cells in a patient.

He had to rule out many causes, some of which might have been fatal; some of which could be handled with antibiotics.

As he ruled out each possible cause, he started on another research because the white cell count remained high and there was no apparent reason for it.

Parents can become impatient with such thoroughness, but if they have any common sense they will be grateful that they have a physician who is not afraid to say that there is no obvious cause for the manifest results of a high white cell count.

In the end, he will find the cause, but whether he can effect a cure depends upon many factors. This particular patient had once had mononucleosis and this might be an aftermath. But afterwards of illnesses can be quite a nuisance and even serious.

Thus, parents would be wise to get a competent physician, with a good, local reputation and to trust him. He will not know everything because there is too much to know, but a good man, with a hospital connection, with access to a pathology laboratory will know how to discover whatever is available.

When I had a heart attack, I was bothered by countless friends to try this wonder of the ages or that brilliant man. I declined. A competent heart man, connected with a first rate hospital, had been recommended and that was sufficient.

These great men are a pain in the neck sometimes. When a patient is very sick, the temperament of doctor and patient is very important. If they do not jibe, the doctor should drop the patient and recommend somebody else because the psychological effect of physician on patient is very important.

They must be in absolute rapport. The same is true of nurses. A bothersome biddy can upset a patient no end; a frankly, kindly but rigid nurse can save a life.

Doctors and nurses should not be sued by patients who do not know what it is all about nor should they be tried by juries which cannot even understand the terminology.

Just as lawyers are investigated by Bar Associations which make recommendations of disbarment for misfeasance such as barratry, so should physicians who are accused appear before boards of medical associations.

Perhaps one day there will be enough physicians who are specialists in forensic medicine, that is, both law and medicine, for the physicians to do their own policing.

For My Fair Lady

Off The Record

By Robert Clark, City Editor

PROBABLY one of the best edicts noticed by this writer in recent years was the one handed down the other night by the Summit Hill Borough Council.

The Carbon County group adopted an ordinance to penalize minors who purchase or consume intoxicating beverages in the community's licensed establishments.

The ordinance calls for a fine of $100 or 10 days in jail for any minor who enters a taproom for the purpose of securing beverages.

According to Summit Hill's chief burgess, the man who requested the enactment of the ordinance, strict enforcement of the ruling by the borough's police department will prevail.

Actually the bill for the ordinance was started rolling by the tavern owners who more times than not are caught in the middle of such infractions.

The present state law governing drinking by minors, places all responsibility on the licensee and penalties range from suspension to revocation of licenses with possible loss of business and investment.

It would be a good move if all the boroughs and townships in Monroe County approved the same type measure. We know that the tavern proprietors have been pushing for such a law in the state. However, it has come upon deaf ears in Harrisburg.

Maybe if the boroughs locally took up the pitch the rest of the commonwealth would fall in line as Summit Hill after State College, the first area to adopt such an ordinance.

There is no doubt that minors are consuming or purchasing alcoholic beverages here and afar. Most however, are using ruses (faked identification cards) or "older persons" to buy off perplexed, tavern owners.

An ordinance, now in effect in Summit Hill, would put a dent in the unlawful acts and also a dent in the pocketbooks of the person or persons involved.

Certainly only good could come from such an ordinance.

Social Security Guide

Q. I will be 72 years of age the 15th of November. I applied for social security benefits in 1957, but I have never received any checks because I have had earnings of over $4000 each year. Will I get all of my checks for the year I become 72?

A. No. You will only be entitled to checks for the month you reach age 72 and thereafter. Your total earnings during the entire year must be counted in determining how many checks are due you for the months before your 72nd birthday. If your earnings are over $2000 for the year, you would not be due 10 checks—the checks for the months of January through October.

How many remember when it was announced that the new concrete highway from Delaware Water Gap to Portland would be opened? That was forty years ago.

The Pennsylvania Story

School Bill Fight

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Perhaps nothing is more illustrative of the uncertainty that exists over what does actually constitute a sound highway safety program than the divergence of view points over whether medial barriers should be installed in divided expressways such as the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

As noted in this column yesterday Pennsylvania's Commissioner of Highway Safety has asserted that medial barriers should be used.

But the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, which has had more experience with expressway woes and operator of the forerunner of today's superhighways, insisted up to Monday that the feasibility of the medial barriers has by no means been proven conclusively.

Although the commission

Today there are some 44 miles of Pennsylvania Turnpike with the metal medial barrier — placed at sections that seemed to be "accident prone" and where there has been a history of serious accidents.

This is the record of those 44 miles of barrier-equipped turnpike for the past year:

Only 25 per cent of the 44 miles is doing the job of reducing fatal accidents.

Another 25 per cent had not helped "one whit."

The remaining 50 per cent of the center guard rail section has increased fatal accidents.

Commented Turnpike Commission Director of Operations Franklin V. Summers following authorization Monday of the installation of 100 miles of medial barrier on the 470-mile segment:

"We simply are not convinced at this time that the erection of additional medial guard rail mileage is warranted. We are constantly studying it — and through our safety division, thoroughly analyzing every single accident as we have been doing for years."

An intensive study made by the commission one year (1957) of a 100-mile section showed that 840 vehicles crossed the 16-foot wide medial strip of the turnpike — but not one was involved in a fatal accident!

Significantly perhaps, California literally "grew" guard rails for the medial strips along its network of expressways — but they have subsequently been removed. California found that on the congested high speed expressways of today the metal center guard rails only served to throw the guard rail-plunging vehicle back into the path of traffic!

What about planting hardy hedge rose bushes, at one time a heavily talked up safety point?

"We tried that — along with trees, bushes and shrubs. They'd knock them down as fast as we put them up," commented one turnpike official.

In any event, the main point at which we are driving is that no one seems to have the answer to true highway safety. For the most part it is still in the "guessing" stage.

Perhaps the best answer came inadvertently from the Turnpike Commission itself when Operations Directors Summers commented in exasperated concern:

"Just so much can be done mechanically — the person behind the wheel still holds the answer."

Who's right — who's wrong? On one point there is no guessing: "highway safety is everyone's job."

Reports From Congress

Are They Feasible?

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — Democratic leaders say an aid-to-education bill is a "must" for the August session of Congress. But a large number of Republicans and Southern Democrats are none too anxious to send a school bill from Capitol Hill to the White House, and it's just possible that President Eisenhower wouldn't want to sign it if it got there. A sharp fight on the issue is likely.

Both the House and the Senate have passed education bills, but the provisions differ in major respects. The Senate bill authorizes about $1.8 billion over two years in federal grants to the states, to be used for school construction or teachers' salaries. Under the Senate bill, funds would be allocated on the basis of need, with the poorer states receiving more per school-age child than the wealthier states.

The House bill authorizes about $1.3 billion over four years for school construction only, and does not contain any "equalization formula" to give more money to the poorer states. In addition, the House bill carries a rider, sponsored by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D.N.Y.) declaring that schools constructed with the federal funds "shall be available to students without regard to race, creed, color, national origin or religion, in accordance with the decisions of the United States Supreme Court."

Compromise Plan — The House Rules Committee June 22 voted 5-7 against allowing the bill to go to conference to iron out these differences. However, House and Senate leaders were already informally working out a compromise. Final agreement on a plan would probably bring enough pressure on the Rules Committee to get it to release the bill for a formal conference.

Under the compromise, the Senate would accept the House's four-year authorization of $1.3 billion and forego aid for teachers' salaries; the House, in turn, would drop the Powell amendment and accept an equalization formula.

But the bill faces several additional hurdles. Democrats and the Administration are still at odds over a plan for the states to put up funds matching those contributed by the Federal Government. Democratic sponsors of the House bill wrote in a provision that either state or local governments could put up the matching funds in the first two years giving the states some time to set up machinery to raise the money.

Republicans are insisting that state governments should be forced to assume the matching obligations all four years. Both sides say they won't yield, but it is unlikely that this point of difference alone would prevent a bill from passing.

President's Position — A more important question — to which the final answer is still unknown — is whether President Eisenhower would sign the compromise bill. The Administration aid-to-education plan, rejected by both houses, would have spread federal payments over a period of 30-35 years by helping local areas pay the costs of long-term school bonds. Whether Mr. Eisenhower would be agreeable to a short-run program of direct grants is uncertain. Possibly, compromises have put the bill in a shape acceptable to the President.

But if the President indicates to his Congressional leaders that he won't sign the bill, Republicans will do their best to block the bill's passage and embarrass the Democratic Congress rather than risk a veto embarrassing to themselves.

Health Column

Mortality Risk

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.
Is dieting really worth the effort?

You bet it is! It's tough to remain on a diet, I'll concede. In fact, up to 80 per cent of those who embark upon diet programs don't follow them through. Persons with emotional problems are much more likely to quit than are reasonably stable individuals.

Just how successful your own weight reduction program will be, depends upon whether you have set a realistic goal for yourself and upon the importance you attach to food and eating.

Look At Facts
In case you may be wavering in your determination to diet, let us, as the politicians say, look at the record.

Among persons between the ages of 45 and 50, as little as ten excess pounds increases the chances of death by eight per cent above the normal.

Thirty extra pounds mean a 28 per cent increase in chance of death. And you more than double your chances of dying (a 56 per cent jump) if you are carrying around 50 excess pounds.

The greater the amount of overweight, the higher the mortality rate. It's that simple.

Let's look at individual diseases.

The death rate from heart disease for obese men between 25 and 74 is 42 per cent above normal. The women fare even worse. For obese females in this same age bracket, the heart disease death rate is 75 per cent above normal.

Obese More Susceptible
Advanced atherosclerosis is three times more prevalent in obese persons than in those who are underweight. And sustained hypertension is twice as frequent among the obese as among those of normal diet.

Diabetes is another example. The death rate from this disease among obese men and women is nearly four times as high as for those of normal or average weight.

You are more likely to get varicose veins and to suffer from gallbladder and gallstone trouble if you are fat.

Also, it will be more difficult for you to recover from acute infections such as pneumonia if you are overweight.

I could go on and on, but I think you get the point. Does it pay to take off these excess pounds?

It sure does. It pays off in the best way possible—a longer, healthier life.

Question And Answer
Mr. M. J.: Can distemper be passed along to a person who is in contact with a dog that has this disease?

Answer: Ordinarily, the virus of distemper in dogs does not affect human beings.

Pomp and Plenty Circumstances: Earl Mountbatten (Prince Philip's precious uncle) is supreme commander of the British fleet. He is the man who liquidated the British empire and gave the Reds their first footholds in Asia and Africa. Now some London papers are charging that he is also liquidating the British Navy. The Mountbattens—or Battenbergs—are, as previously stated here, an international politico-family conspiracy with ties to almost every ruling house and behind the Iron Curtain.

As the London Express noted: "His father, Prince Louis of Battenberg, was forced to resign from the Navy because of his German connections. That was his tragedy. But it may go down in history as his son's tragedy that he failed to resign." He never will while the Queen's husband is in there battling for the continued glory and prosperity of all Mountbattens — wherever found — unless the Earl is appointed Ambassador to Washington as rumored. But can we take him?

I Ain't Myself Today (So who am I?): The British papers had even hotter photos of Roger Vadim and Tina Livanos (formerly Onassis) than those they printed. They were plenty indicative of what's in the wind. In other words Vadim (who discovered and wed Bardot) is definitely calling off the second marriage to her double, Annette Stroyberg, despite the rumors of a reconciliation. And to make the circle complete, BB's one-time boyfriend, Sacha Distel, is (despite denials) back with Annette—at Jack Warner's villa.

The four cent Francis Scott Key "Credo" will have first day sale at Baltimore, Md., Sept. 14 and the four cent commemorative for the 150th anniversary of Mexican Independence on Sept. 16 at Los Angeles, Calif.

On Sept. 26 a four cent stamp to honor the 100th anniversary of the first treaty to promote mutual understanding and good will between Japan and the United States will have first day sale at Washington, D.C. Miss Gyo Fujikawa, an American artist of Japanese parentage, now living in New York City, designed the United States-Japan stamp.

Miss Fujikawa was born in Berkeley, Calif., attended the Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles and taught there for several years. She then spent a year in Japan and upon returning to United States worked for the Walt Disney Productions and the Twentieth Century Fox and is a member of the Society of Illustrators.

The design features a view of the Washington Monument in Washington, D.C. with sprays of Japanese cherry blossoms around its base. The stamp will be printed in pink and black.

The Japanese cherry trees in Washington that many thousand visitors come to see each year when they are in blossom, were presented to the United States as a gift of friendship, by the Japanese Government many years ago. Thus the sprays of cherry blossoms in the design of the stamp.

Daniel Stroud Possessed Perception And Quickness

(Second in series of articles on how the Stroud family helped form Stroudsburg. Last Sunday Stroudsburg celebrated its 150th anniversary as a town.)

Dr. Robert Brown DANIEL STROUD was born May 22, 1772 at the residence of his parents in Stroudsburg. While still very young it was noted that he possessed unusual keenness of perception and quickness of mind. His ability for asking questions was wonderful and when interested he thoroughly studied a subject.

Jacob Stroud, recognizing the abilities of his son gave him the best training that the times afforded.

When only nine years old, Daniel was placed under the care of Parson Hanna, a Presbyterian minister, who resided at Nazareth. Here he received a classical education. He expressed a desire to study law and did so in the law office of Jared Ingersoll of Philadelphia.

Young Stroud progressed so rapidly in his understanding of law that he was admitted to the bar as soon as he had reached the minimum age for admission.

While in Philadelphia he met Elizabeth Shoemaker of Cheltenham, a Quaker, who married him on Aug. 7, 1792 and who was disowned by the meeting for marrying a Presbyterian. This was a love match as may be known by many impassioned letters written by Daniel to his wife during his frequent absences from home.

Meanwhile in Stroudsburg, Jacob began to realize that he was growing old and that he would soon need one of his sons to assist him with his large business interests. Naturally he selected his eldest son, John for this purpose. It happened that Jacob had built houses for his children when it seemed advisable to do so.

These were large stone houses, erected to endure for many years. Six of these Stroud houses are still standing and are occupied. For his son John he built the house which we know as the Stroud Community House erected in 1795. John Stroud, however had no liking for a business career. He preferred to live on a farm.

Accordingly Jacob built a house for John at a place about three miles from town which at present is the club house of the Glen Brook Country Club.

Would Help Jacob knew that Daniel's keen mind and his legal training would be of great assistance to him. For these reasons Daniel was recalled from Easton and was established in the Community House where he lived until his death.

For a time the home of Daniel and Elizabeth Stroud was the scene of many a merry social gathering. Daniel was an expert violinist and his wife accompanied him on the harpsichord or sang accompanied by his violin as she possessed a fine soprano voice. In 1802, however he and Elizabeth joined Meeting and their way of life was changed.

There were no more dances for young people at the Stroud home, no more music. He gave up his ruffled shirts, gay coats and dressed in the plainest kind of clothes of a drab color. He removed all fancy ornaments and many-colored upholstery from furniture. His violin was burned and the harpsichord was given away. He abandoned the practice of law because he considered it a sin to administer oaths.

Jacob Stroud died July 14, 1806 and his estate was divided among his children. Daniel received the unsold lots in Stroudsburg.

ERA'S END—The old Brodhead cottage, historic building of early Delaware Water Gap boarding house days, lies in rubble. The structure was damaged by fire several years ago. The debris shown here will be set afire this morning. It is situated behind Heitler's Texaco station on Broad St. Picture of original cottage and story will run in tomorrow's Daily Record. Playhouse Reviewer Tabs 'Ernest In Love' Superb

By Gloria S. Randolph MOUNTAINHOME — This week audiences at the Pocono Playhouse have an unusually delightful treat in store for them. Rowena Stevens is presenting "Ernest In Love." It is superb musical comedy, refreshingly intimate, pin-pointed by a flawless performance.

Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" has given a new dimension in its present adaptation. This is not merely the addition of music and lyrics to the original play. It is a skillfully constructed piece of musical theater which carefully preserves Wilde's polished drawing-room satire.

The book and lyrics by Anne Crosswell and music by Lee Pockris are perfect in every respect. To do justice to the quality of the witty dialogue and brilliant musical numbers the entire production must be nearly perfect and this one is.

Furnish Background Sam Pottle and David Hollister at the pianos furnish the musical background which is wonderfully expressive as accompaniment and as the actual foundation for the show.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fritz and children Rachel, Randolph, Robert and Janipher of Baton Rouge, La., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eichhorn of Linden, N.J., visited on Sunday with Mrs. Eichhorn's mother, Mrs. Viola Kurtz and daughter Anna.

Clarence Williams returned to his home from the Eastern Hospital where he had been a surgical patient for several weeks.

Miss Elizabeth Essler of Easton is spending several days with Miss Ruth Williams at Middle Village.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Rusling have returned home after spending a week vacationing at Ocean City, N.J.

Warrant Officer and Mrs. James Sprich and daughter, Marsha, of Fort Meade, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Washington, N.J., were guests of Mrs. Ralph Stalger at the home of her mother, Mrs. Randall Carpenter.

Miss Melinda Rushin of Philadelphia, spent the weekend with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Rushin and family.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Kilbanski of Easton are spending some time with Mrs. Kilbanski's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Max Effross.

and Lella Martin give inspired performances. Louis Edmonds and Geraine Richards also give exceptionally fine portrayals. Kate Wilkinson is a perfect example of the utmost propriety as "Lady Bracknell" and possesses a superior singing voice. There is remarkably fine singing by all the principals and marvelously precise delivery of lines.

Lucy Landau plays the "mysterious" Miss Prism with exactly the right touch of frankness and flavor of suspicion. John Hays is excellent in a brief appearance as a valet and as the preposterous Rev. Dr. Chausable he is absolutely perfect.

Christina Gillespie and Sam Stoneburner play servants who enjoy themselves immensely. They are excellent in a comedy-drama about the rules of society and love-making.

Mocks High Society "The Importance of Being Earnest" is farce-comedy on its highest level. The improbabilities and coincidences of farce are used in a subtle way to mock high-society manners and morals.

"Ernest In Love" emphasizes the elegance and highborn airs of the characters with patter songs, clever duets and exciting ensembles. There is a similarity to Gilbert and Sullivan but it is not imitative — the score is wholly original. Wilde's brittle humor resembles Gilbert's but "Ernest In Love" is not so extravagant as a G & S operetta. It is a rare theatrical evening when all the elements of a production are combined to give us a performance that is as captivating as this one. "Ernest In Love" is a masterpiece and in the present production it is masterfully presented.

Costs $31 More Per Case To Pay Hospital Benefits

IT COST $31.03 more per case to pay Blue Cross hospital benefits for Northeastern Pennsylvania Blue Cross members who were hospitalized during June of this year than it did in June, 1959.

This was just one aspect of the picture of steadily rising hospital costs and charges, and increasing length of stay, studied by the Board of Directors of Hospital Service Assn.

While the average cost per case was thus accelerating the situation was further complicated by an increase of more than one day's stay on each case. This did not include maternity stays, which remained constant at 5.2 days per case. But this was offset by the fact that the cost of each maternity stay jumped by approximately $22 per case.

Blue Cross memberships as of June 30 was 438,165; Blue Shield membership for the same date was 342,628 or total of 780,793 accounts being handled by the plan.

Today's Trend Is Colonial But Built For Comfort

A "SOUTHERN Colonial" in the fullest meaning of the term is our design featured this week. Note the bay windows, columnar porch, ornamental iron balcony, and the chandler type hanging porch light.

The rear of this brick colonial is just as attractive in design: Featuring another columnar porch with a roof deck and wooden hand railing—ideal for sun bathing. Door of the den is glass centered with two windows on each side.

There are twenty-eight windows in this design, including the ones featured in the garage. This two-car garage has a stairway leading to the second floor.

Not only is the exterior impressive, but the interior as well. The first feature as you enter this home is the circular open stairway in the entrance hall. This center hallway affords good traffic circulation.

Let's look at some of the special features of this home, such as the spaciousness; the lovely marble fireplace in the living room with a wooden mantel; another fireplace featured in the den; nice large rooms; all bathrooms, including lavatory have built-in vanities, and a built-in linen closet in the upstairs bathroom; built-in china cabinets in the dining room; large storage space over the garage, unless you want a fifth bedroom; private bath off the master bedroom; plus double closets in all four bedrooms; and a basement too.

The kitchen provides space for a breakfast nook, has plenty of counter space and cabinets, plus a corner sink. A well compact working area for the home-maker, having easy access to the dining room as well as the back porch for outdoor meals.

This plan conforms to F.H.A., V.A. and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 1,565 sq. ft., 46,703 cu. ft., and 648 sq. ft. in the garage. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

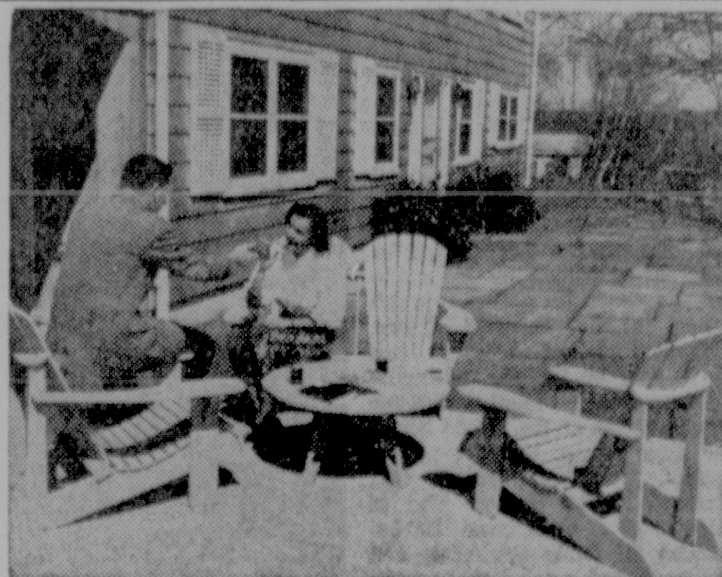

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List, and Specification Guide for Des. No. H-460 may be purchased for $9.75 for 1st set; 2 for $18.25; 3 for $26.25; or 4 for $33.75. Noisy Roof Can Rattle Any Family

THE GENTLE pitter-patter of rain on the roof is a soothing sound most everyone enjoys. But did you know it's possible for a roof to be annoyingly noisy?

Under certain conditions, wind can set up an irritating vibration in some metal roofs, particularly on a modern, low-pitched roof. Hall or a hard rain may create objectionably loud noise. Even natural expansion and contraction can create disturbing sounds.

Unlike roofs of more rigid materials, asphalt shingles provide a quiet roof because they are flexible. They shrug off rain, hail, sleet, snow, and ice effectively for years, yet reduce the sounds of impact to a whisper.

Easy To Build Lawn Chairs

THE comfortable, smartly designed lawn furniture illustrated above were all built from easy to follow patterns. Thanks to this simplified method of construction, three pieces of outdoor living furniture can be built for a fraction of what similar pieces cost when purchased readymade.

Best of all, anyone can build these chairs. The curved back and curved seat are cut from flat pieces of lumber with a coping or keyhole saw. After cutting each piece to exact size of the full size pattern, each is fastened in position shown on pattern. To further simplify construction, screw and bolt holes are indicated on pattern.

While similarly designed chairs sell at retail up to $16.95, materials can be purchased from your local lumber dealer for about a third. If you buy lumber for more than one chair, each costs less. A 50c coping saw is about the only special tool required.

The lawn chair is Pattern No. 32; Lawn Settee, Pattern No. 39; and Terrace Table, Pattern No. 326. Send 50c in coin, check or money order for each pattern requested to The Daily Record, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York. Send additional 35c for 64 page catalog illustrating over 300 other build-it-yourself projects.

Costs High Minus Insulation

UNLESS you want to throw money away, don't try to air condition any house until it's thoroughly insulated.

If walls, ceilings, and floors are properly insulated with mineral wool, a smaller air conditioning unit can be used. It will cost less to buy and to operate than a larger one.

ON THE HOUSE

THE IMPROVED calking compounds now on the market have made it a lot easier to keep moisture out of your house.

This is due not only to the increasing quality of the ingredients in the compounds, but to the wide variety of metal tubes in which the products are packed. The fold-up or collapsible type of tube has made it especially convenient to spread exactly the right amount of compound into the desired areas.

Calking is necessary wherever there is any possibility that rain or moisture will intrude. This usually is where one structural part of the house joins another. It is necessary that all broken or loose compound be removed before the new application. An old chisel or screw driver will do the trick nicely, after which the dust can be brushed away.

The major asset of calking compound is that, although the surface hardens, the inside retains its elasticity for years. This enables it to "give" slightly when there is contracting and/or expanding.

Although most calking is done on the outside of the house, it occasionally is necessary on the inside. For instance, cracks around bathroom wall tiles and where the outer rim of the bathtub meets the wall must be calked to prevent water damage. With a squeeze tube, a bead of compound can be placed around the tub. Where the filler must be shaped, one of those small wooden sticks used in ice cream confections does a nice job.

One of the worst mistakes you can make in painting the outside of a house is to proceed without first doing any necessary calking. No matter how good the quality of the paint or how carefully you work, the project can be spoiled in a matter of months if all openings are not calked. Rain and moisture enter these cracks, get behind the walls and cause the outside paint to peel, crack and blister. Very often a small amount of calking compound would have prevented this condition. In fact, paint job or not, it's a good idea to conduct a periodic inspection of the outside of your house to see whether any openings have developed. It can save a lot of money in the long run.

Here's the Answer

Question: There are several hairline cracks in the concrete floor of our patio. I have filled them twice with a concrete mixture, but the mixture seems to dry up and come out after a few months. What am I doing wrong?

Answer: It is probable that you are using too heavy a mixture. Do not use concrete, which is a mixture of sand, gravel, portland cement and water. Instead, use grout, which is merely portland cement and water. This penetrates the crevices much better than concrete. Another possible cause of the trouble is that you are not dousing the cracks with water before applying the patching material. Also wet down the patched areas a couple times a day for 3 or 4 days after the job is finished.

Seeks Tight Traffic Law Enforcement

HARRISBURG (AP)—Frank G. McCartney, state police commissioner, called a conference for today of troop and district commanders to discuss tighter traffic law enforcement.

McCartney said yesterday his action was prompted by a weekend Pennsylvania highway death toll of 24 persons. He called it "frightening."

"The most important single cause for the fatalities this weekend was excessive speed, which accounts for seven accidents in which 11 persons were killed," said McCartney in a statement. "Enforcement is certainly not the solution to the entire traffic safety problem, but it is certainly the major factor in preventing violation of the law, and violation of the law is known to be the major factor causing accidents," the commissioner said.

The meeting will be at the Hershey State Police Academy.

In addition to the speeding deaths, said McCartney, there were five head-on crashes which killed eight persons; four were killed in three accidents in which drivers fell asleep, and one pedestrian was killed.

In another development related to highway safety, Rep. Albert W. Johnson, House Republican floor leader, urged enactment of legislation setting up provisional licenses for 16 and 17-year-old drivers.

"Provisions of the bill which I support will include the requirement of parental consent for 16 and 17-year-olds to obtain a junior drivers' license," said Johnson.

Other provisions would ban youngsters driving after sunset, except to and from school or work unless accompanied by an adult and allow a full drivers' license for 17-year-olds who complete driver training courses.

ARTHUR HENDERSON leafs through his Bible which he has had for eighty years. He is formerly of England and he has been a citizen of the United States for many years. He has seen 94 years of living today.

Arthur Henderson Observes 94th Birthday; Former Hughes Employee

"I'll cook you anything you'd like and I know how to eat it," was a statement made Monday by Arthur Henderson who is observing his 94th birthday today.

One hot day in July many years ago he came to the United States from England for a one-day visit. Many years later, still with the clear round tones of the English accent showing through his speech, he greets people and goes about his daily activities.

Today he recalls his ability as a cook, but when he first started a restaurant many years ago in Harrison, N. J., he said "I didn't even know how to cook an egg." He wrote to his sister and father back in England told them of his new business and asked them to join him in the United States. They did so and the venture grew into a "fine business."

On his fourteenth birthday he acquired a Bible. The way he came about getting the Bible is only one of the many experiences he recalls from his 94 years. Henderson tells how during the Summer of his thirteenth year he went to his father and told him he wanted a job like the other boys. He found himself working as a chemist's assistant in a laboratory.

The work was not desirable but after a period he was paid seven English sovereigns. "I looked at the money and ran home like a deer to show it to my mother." His mother told him that on his fifth birthday she had given him a Bible and now she felt it was time for him to buy himself a good one. So on his fourteenth birthday he and his mother went to Pater-noster Row, where good books are found, and they bought a good one. It is this Bible that he still uses today. The margins are marked with notes in his own handwriting meticulously detailed.

Famous Men

Henderson is a man who can tell of many contacts with well known men in their field. One incident that is recalled about him is that he owned a bakery near Annapolis, Md., and although the sailors patronized his shop they often neglected to pay him. In order to solve the situation, Henderson spoke to the Secretary of the Navy, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who set up the paymaster in the bakery and from then on Henderson received payment from the sailors.

Another incident occurred while he was living in East Stroudsburg, for it was then that he met the medical mis-

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

Palestine, Italy — "The splendor falls on castle walls and snowy summits old in story" and the stories about Palestine go back so far that its origins are lost in antiquity. There is a legend about a Man in an Iron Mask held captive there — and a statue to Francesco, a poet who penned his 13th century ballads from a dungeon in the fortress which crowns the mountain height.

In the town below, there is a statue to the composer Palestrina, who took his name from his native town and who added polyphony to the Gregorian chants late in the Renaissance. And there are the magnificent mosaics preserved in the Palazzo Barberini, itself erected on the site of an ancient temple — underplannings so vast and so impressive that the mind balks at the thought of the ancient civilization which created it.

Palestine itself preserves many civilizations from the ruins of the temple — with stables built in its lower arcades, houses in its middle reaches and the palace on its top tier — to the medieval town which climbs the steep hillside around it and crowns the summit with streets so narrow that you park the car and wander on foot up its steps with their own generations of chickens, through the arches with the eels tethered in the shade — to the old fortress crowning its height, its walls hung with the drying wash of the surrounding houses, washed at the village pump amid laughter and gossip.

We had the palace and its attendants to ourselves and spent an enchanting hour roaming through the galleries, marveling at the pillars arranged in massive semicircle above the circular steps which overlooked the whole valley below, lost in the remnants of ancient statues and bronze utensils with their etched feet, etched sides and the Impish miniature statues which crowned their lids, and in the mosaics themselves.

There is one tremendous one — as bright in color and amazing in design as the day it was finished with fishermen and sea monsters, crocodiles and native spearmen, huntsmen and their dogs, and alpine hunters and mountain goats winding up a mystic river.

As we were leaving, still bemused, the guard in front called our attention to another "great work of art" just up the street. A sign on one of the houses "Arte de Palestine" guided us to a staircase and upstairs we found a handsome young Italian woman surrounded by the embroidery which she and her mother had done. The guard, who may have been her husband, was right though. That embroidery was in its way as great a "work of art" as the statues, the mosaics or Palestine's music.

There was one green tablecloth embroidered in solid stitches in tan figures edged with gold and surrounded by scrollwork that was worthy of any museum and more than worth its price of about $75 — if you could afford a $75 table cloth and bear to use a museum piece to eat from.

Another "arte de Palestine" even today is its copper and we visited a family copper factory coming away with a miniature wine set for Robin and a wistful wish that one of those big copper water jugs which the women in the streets carried so lightly on their heads could conceivably fit into 44 pounds of airplane luggage.

That flight is moving closer — and the "whole summer" that sounded long is somehow shrinking into weeks. The fact that Peter's job with the Olympics — something to do with AP wire photos — begins next Monday seems to compress it even more. And I'm not nearly ready.

So here we are, once again, right back where we were yesterday—in the cosmetic department. I did tell you, I believe, about the big savings on Elizabeth Arden soaps... body lotions... Helena Rubinstein "matched pairs"... and such. Then I ran out of space.

However, I can't leave Cosmetics, without telling you about the rather sensational moisturizers for which your skin is probably crying these parched early August days. Two of these very effective moisturizers are by Revlon, and are designed to work hand in hand—one is the Moon Drops cleanser, the other the Moon Drops Balm. Because you really should become acquainted with both these aids to drying, aging skin if you have not already done so, Revlon offers the moisturizer cleanser FREE with the purchase of the Balm—a 4.75 value for only 3.00.

Once again too, Wyckoff's is presenting an introductory offer of refreshing, delightful Moisture Petals by DuBarry. This remarkable beauty aid contains the secret of the dewy, fresh, long-lasting makeup so coveted by women today. In its regular size, this particular DuBarry product retails at 5.00. The introductory size is priced at a mere 1.50.

I am sure that the success of all our summer cosmetics is due, in part at least, to the fact that they not only FEEL refreshing, but they LOOK and SMELL refreshing. Before one even purchases them, they cool the eye and the nostril, and KNOW from the way they appear they'll revive your drooping spirits; put new zip in your complexion and new zing in your spirits. Try them and see! It's so darned easy to be a DRIP in summer—let's fight it!

TALK ABOUT HONEY COMBS!

The big buzz at Wyckoff's right now, for guys as well as dolls, is the new Kent-Cosby Stimulator Comb. From the famous firm of Kent of London comes that which the manufacturer claims to be "the greatest improvement in combs in 6,000 years." (Don't ask me to prove it—it's HIS claim). I can only say that this is the most unusual comb I've ever used... it's fun... and it does seem to stimulate the scalp as it prods lazy roots into wakefulness.

The Kent comb has movable teeth—at least, that's as close as I can come to an accurate description. It is not perfectly straight across—but is arched in the center, and the teeth are suspended from a plastic handle. The comb flexes as one uses it, the side teeth moving up and down as they follow the contour of the head. This flex, I am told, permits the Kent comb to cover five times the normal combing surface, and reach every root with a gentle lateral movement.

It is hygienic too, lifting out of the handle for easy washing, and will probably last a long, long time, since it will break less easily than a comb with stationary teeth. The manufacturer recommends frequent hair washings... a five minute massage of the scalp each night and morning with finger tips, followed by use of the Kent-Cosby comb. If these rules are followed, he contends the user will see the difference in hair beauty and scalp health. Since the comb is only 1.00, what can one lose? Anything's better than "hair today—gone tomorrow!"

Well, It's An Excuse

Dear Abby: I am very much in love with a man. He told me he was very fond of me but proved it in every way I know how, but he still says his bad experience can't let him trust another woman. Does his excuse make good sense to you?

WANTS A WEDDING RING

Dear Abby: It makes about as much sense as a man who will borrow a car but refuses to buy one — because he once got stuck with a lemon.

Dear Abby: Please don't tell me to send my husband to our clergyman because he would never go. In fact, he even stays away from funerals because he thinks the minister is talking about him. My husband has a drinking problem. One night he was passed out on the sofa when my sister and her husband came over, so we just let him lay there. Suddenly he jumped up like a mad man and slapped my face. He must have been dreaming. My sister took my part, so he kicked her. Then her husband got mad and hit my husband and the fight started. It took the police to break it up. I left my husband that night. A week later his mother called and said he had a stroke, so I ran over. It wasn't a stroke. He was dead drunk again. Abby, he is so grand when he is sober — a good worker and good father to our four kiddies. He promised if I'd take him back he'd quit drinking. How can I tell if he means it this time? He's promised before.

DRUNKARD'S WIFE

Dear Wife: Give him another chance — on condition that he show his sincerity by calling "A.A." Thousands of alcoholics have returned to lives of sobriety and self-respect with the help of this organization. And like the best things in life — it's free!

Dear Abby: We are newlyweds who just moved into an apartment. An elderly couple (he is an invalid) have the apartment across the hall. They seem to be very nice people, but here is the problem:

The first morning we were here I smelled burnt toast from their apartment. I let it go, thinking anybody can accidentally burn toast. The next morning I smelled burnt toast again. The same thing happened on the third morning. Finally I went over there and asked her how come she was burning the toast every morning. She said her husband liked it that way. Should I complain to the landlord? My husband says for me to skip it.

BOTHERED

Dear Bothered: I agree with your husband.

Confidential To Chris: Get off the farm once in a while. You won't find a bride in the Sears and Roebuck catalogue.

If you want a personal reply from Abby, write to her in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She answers all letters.

Chemical Test for Intoxication

Chemical testing is an extremely accurate method of testing drivers to determine whether they are under the influence of alcohol. Since there are many physical conditions which may give the appearance of alcoholic inebriation, chemical testing is a safeguard for the innocent operator, as well as proof of guilt for the drunken driver.

In chemical tests, the breath, blood or urine of the driver is examined to determine the amount of alcohol in the blood. This is the only objective evidence to prove a driver is under the influence.

Such tests are now being used, with court acceptance in several Pennsylvania counties, and it is hoped that all counties in the state will adopt this method of testing.

The Department of Health, in cooperation with the Bureau of Traffic Safety, has instituted educational programs throughout the state, to encourage local police departments and district attorneys to use chemical tests for intoxication. The tests which are recommended are standardized by the American Medical Association, the American Bar Association and the National Safety Council.

Through universal acceptance of chemical testing in Pennsylvania, it will be legally possible to remove from our streets and highways that potential killer and crippler, the drunken driver.

Simmons Wins 2nd Cards Win Pair To Move Closer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Curt Simmons blanked Philadelphia 6-0 on five hits Tuesday night to cap a doubleheader sweep for St. Louis. The Cardinals won the opener 5-4 on the hitting of Stan Musial and Curt Flood.

St. Louis broke the nightcap open by scoring three runs in the sixth inning without a hit.

The victory was Simmons' fourth against two defeats, and his third over his former teammates. St. Louis moved into the sixth inning with a 1-0 lead as a result of a double by Walt Moryn and single by Carl Sawatski in the fourth.

Tilt Changed

THE FIRST National Bank-Wyckoff-Sears game in the Stroudsburg Little League has been changed from Thursday to Friday.

Nothing But Vitamins Test Shows After Swim Charge

NEW YORK (AP)—An analysis of a pill found in the women's locker room at the U.S. Olympic trials in Detroit last week showed it was a vitamin tablet, an Amateur Athletic Union official said Tuesday.

Jim Simms, secretary-treasurer of the AAU, said he had the pill analyzed at the request of Ben York, chairman of the U.S. Olympic Women's Swimming Committee.

Simms said York had been given the pill by a coach who said it had been found in the women's locker room at the Brennan Pools, site of the U.S. Olympic swimming and diving trials last week. The coach, whom Simms declined to identify, had asked for an examination of the pill.

Simms, in answer to a question, said the coach was not Weikko Ruuska, who had charged some West Coast swimmers had used pep pills in the trials.

"The pill was an ordinary one used to make up a deficiency of iron," said Simms. "It can be purchased at any drugstore without prescription."

He said he had turned over the chemist's report to the U.S. Olympic Committee.

York said in West Palm Beach that Stan Tinkham, coach of the North Virginia Aquatic Club, found the pill. He added he had Tinkham send it to New York for analysis.

It will be up to the AAU to decide what — if any — further action to take, York said.

Estrada Blanks Tigers

DETROIT (AP)—Young Chuck Estrada pitched through a pelting rain Tuesday night and shut out the Detroit Tigers 3-0. Brooks Robinson providing all the Baltimore runs with his 11th home run.

The right-hander posted his 12th victory in 18 decisions, yielding only four singles as the challenging Orioles won their fourth in a row and their ninth in the last 10 games.

Rain began to fall in the fourth inning and continued at a steady pace throughout the game, but most of the crowd of 22,007 stayed on to the finish.

Frank Lary made it a tense pitching duel. The Tiger starter yielded only three hits in the eight innings worked, but one of them was Robinson's roundtripper into the lower left field stands in the fourth. It followed walks to Al Pilarcik and Jim Gentile.

Ted Gains But Sox Lose, 6-3

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two-run homers by Tito Francona and Vic Power sparked the Cleveland Indians to a 6-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night in the opener of a three-game series.

Ted Williams, Boston's 41-year-old left fielder, blasted a pitch over the right field fence with the bases bare to tie the Red Sox for third place on the all-time home run list. The homer was Williams' 511th of his major league career and his 19th this season.

Babe Ruth and Jimmie Foxx stand one-two on the all-time home run list with 714 and 534, respectively.

Power Helps

Power also knocked in a run with a double to help Jim Perry to his 14th victory against five losses. Perry, a 24-year-old right-hander, gave up seven hits, struck out four batters and walked five in going the distance.

The loser was starter Bill Monbouquette, his ninth in 21 decisions. He was followed to the mound by Tom Borland and Frank Sullivan.

Softball Makes Sizeable Progress

SOFTBALL has come a long way since the slow pitch days of the office picnic games.

But many sports fans still believe that all softball games are high scoring, error-riddled affairs.

There are some leagues that still operate on a purely recreational basis, where the quality of play is secondary to the participation element.

But major softball is not in this category. High scores are rare—no-hitters aren't.

The Keystone Amateur Softball Assn. Major tournament comes to Stroudsburg this weekend with a chance to prove to skeptics what championship softball means.

Pitchers Have Big Advantage

Softball is definitely a pitcher's game. Pitchers don't measure their success by no-hitters but by perfect games.

Using the under-hand motion, softball pitchers can throw any type pitch a baseball hurler can and even some that the baseballers haven't learned.

A Virginia pitcher with the rather quaint name of "Seabiscuit" Simmons has so many types of pitches that his catcher doesn't bother to use signals.

And another softball hurler "Cannonball" Smith, one of the early greats, reportedly could throw a ball more than 300 feet, using an underhand toss.

A major softball pitcher who can't average about 10 strikeouts a game, is rare and so are .300 hitters.

With the pitcher only 46 feet from home plate batters are forced to use their wrists rather than their arms to swing the bat.

Bunt Stance Cuts Strikeouts

It is not uncommon to see batters turn almost completely around in the box and face the pitcher, similar to a bunting stance.

Using this position with a half swing the batters feel they can cut down on strikeouts.

Because of its 12-inch dimension, the softball travels with a floating effect when it is hit in the air and it tends to stay airborne much longer than a baseball, making circus catches a common occurrence.

Fans who remember softball from their gym class days in high school are in for a shock Friday when the best pitchers in Pennsylvania start tossing the ball around at speeds approaching 90 m.p.h.

Strouds Draw Playoff Bye

And returning to the baseball scene, the Strouds have drawn a bye in the Blue Mountain League playoff for fourth place.

The Strouds, Wind Gap and Slaters ended the regular season in a tie for the fourth position with 13-15 marks.

Wind Gap and the Slaters played last night with the Strouds to keep the winners Thursday on the road. League playoffs, involving the first four teams, open Sunday.

Tom Barrow, the Strouds ace righthander, will receive a trophy Saturday night at the league's banquet, as the outstanding pitcher in the league.

Barrow's 7-2 record was the best of any of the league hurlers. Barrow tossed for George Ockershausen's Warriors at East Stroudsburg State College in the spring and also posted the best Normal Hill mark.

Twenty-two-year-old Dick Kane, of Minisink Hills, will compete in the C-D Utility classes in the National Power Boat Assn. Championships in Wisconsin, Aug. 23.

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Thousands of fight fans and admirers paid their last respects to Argentine sports hero Luis Angel Firpo at the Luna Park Boxing Arena Monday.

Firpo's body lay in state at the arena while thousands filed by. He died Saturday of a heart attack at 65.

Firpo had been an Argentine hero ever since he almost won the world heavyweight boxing championship from Jack Dempsey in their classic 1923 bout in New York.

No Pep Pills To Be Used By Russians In Olympics

MOSCOW (AP)—A high Soviet sports official said Tuesday Russia has excellent prospects in 13 events of the Rome Olympics and does not look with favor on the use of dope or stimulants by athletes.

"We don't know of any type of stimulant that is not harmful to an athlete," said Nikolai Romanov, chairman of the Soviet Sports Committee at a press conference for Soviet and foreign journalists.

Flanked by some of the Soviet's outstanding male and female stars, Romanov outlined the Soviet's general picture for the games starting Aug. 25, and answered a flood of questions, mostly by Western newsmen.

Hypnosis No Help For Golf Slice

NEW YORK (AP)—Can hypnosis help an athlete tap that extra ounce of something to win an Olympic gold medal?

Or help a golfer cure his slice? Just possibly sometimes, but only in limited ways, and such experiments could be highly dangerous for athletes unless carried out by well-trained physicians or psychiatrists, medical experts on hypnosis warn.

"There have been reports of seemingly improved athletic performance. But frequently the man's performance is no better, or sometimes it is worse," says Dr. Harold Rosen, Baltimore psychiatrist and chairman of the American Medical Assn.'s Committee on Hypnosis.

Cager Helped

Last winter a basketball player outdid himself in a game after receiving hypnotic suggestion that he would star.

But the AMA Journal, in an editorial, recalls that in 1950 the St. Louis Browns, running in seventh place, hired a "psychologist hypnotist" to eliminate self-doubts of the losing players. The team still finished seventh.

Hypnosis cannot give a man skills he doesn't have, or make him stronger, Dr. Rosen points out.

Secret Powers

While, in stage acts, a hypnotized man may lift seemingly great weights, this is something he could do just as well without hypnosis if he wanted to, or had to. A frail woman can lift an astonishing weight if it is hurting her children.

Hypnosis might help some players relax, and so perhaps perform better by relieving nervousness, Dr. Rosen remarks. But it couldn't by itself cure the golfer's slice.

What gravely worries medical men is that hypnosis to relieve anxiety in seemingly normal people might bring on severe psychiatric disturbances.

This has happened, with some persons hypnotized by amateurs landing in psychiatric hospitals.

Deny Charge

(Officials of the U.S. Olympic women's swimming team Monday denied a charge made by Weikko Ruuska of Berkeley, Calif., father of two swimmers, that some of the girls used pep pills in the Olympic trials at Detroit last week. One of his daughters, Sylvia, 18 made the team for the second time but another, Patricia, 14, failed to gain a place).

"There is a great deal of talk about doping and stimulating pills," Romanov said. "We use only vitamins and preparations recommended by medicine (doctors)." Later he said vitamin candy and chocolate would be taken to Rome.

"We favor athletic longevity of sportsmen," he said. "We expect athletes to perform not only once but more than once."

He said athletes pepped up with stimulants perhaps expect a short athletic life.

Sees Records

Romanov predicted that a great many records would be set in the Olympics and one of his associates said the facilities put up by Italy were excellent.

Romanov said the Soviet has excellent chances in track and field, gymnastics, freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling, boxing, modern pentathlon, rowing, canoeing, shooting, basketball, fencing, weight-lifting, and water polo.

He said Russia would bid for the 1968 Olympics in Moscow. In the meantime, he said, the Soviet has proposed holding European games, similar to the Pan-American and Asian games, in Moscow in 1962.

Tobacco Farming In State

HARRISBURG (AP)—Lancaster County farmers started harvesting tobacco during the past week, the State Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday in its weekly summary of weather and crop conditions.

The report continued: "Timely showers and general rains fell over most of the state during the week, although a few localized spots were missed, and increased temperatures helped the corn crop which has been held back by too much cool, damp weather.

"Farmers throughout the state are combining wheat and oats. Harvest is progressing rapidly in southern counties and is getting started in the central portion of the state.

"Golden Jubilee and Red Haven peaches are now being harvested in central and southern counties as the main crop ripens for picking. Summer apples, such as Transparent, Rambo, Duchess and Lodi varieties, are available in limited supply. Later apples are sizing and showing color as a result of cool nights.

Tomatoes Available
"Tomatoes are available in moderate supply for fresh market in all areas. Several tomato processing plants have opened in south-central areas and all plants are expected to become active by mid-August. Tomato quality is reported to be somewhat below par. "The sweet corn crop is in above average condition in most areas. Supplies for both fresh market and processing are available in moderate volume and prospects for a large, high-quality crop appear good. Snap bean harvest is at its peak."

'Pep' Pill Peddler Is Nabbed

HARRISBURG (AP)—A York man described by State Police Commissioner Frank G. McCartney as "one of the biggest illegal distributors of 'pep pills' in the East" was arrested by state police Tuesday.

Charles W. Christiansen, 36, of York, pleaded innocent to two counts of violation of the Pennsylvania dangerous drugs act. He was charged before Justice of the Peace James Greist, Carlisle, and was ordered held in the Cumberland County prison in lieu of $5,000 bond.

McCartney said Christiansen has been identified as the "wholesaler" who sold amphetamine tablets to two employees of a restaurant-service station near the Carlisle Interchange of the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Arrested July 7
The two attendants were arrested July 7 and pleaded guilty to selling the drugs to truck drivers. Police attributed many violent highway accidents to the use of the amphetamine drug. The drug is used to help the driver to stay awake for long periods but may cause continued use usually results in hallucinations.

GSA To Study Federal Aid For Dorms

HARRISBURG (AP)—The General State Authority Tuesday named a five-man committee to study the possibility of federal aid to finance new dormitory construction at state colleges.

The committee was appointed on a suggestion by Gov. Lawrence, board chairman.

"I have been advised that the commonwealth can realize certain substantial economies in the financing of dormitory construction at state colleges by taking advantage of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency Act," the governor told board members.

He added that recent amendments to the FHFA Act would make the state eligible to apply for loans under the college housing loan program.

Suggests Hold Up
He suggested that the GSA staff hold up financing of $35 million dollars of new construction at the 14 state college campuses until the committee makes its report at the next GSA meeting.

He outlined this procedure for qualifying for loans under the federal program:

The GSA would advertise for the sale of bonds for the projects involved. If the bids received were lower than the 3 1/2 per cent offered under the FHFA rates, the GSA must make the award to the successful bidder. But if the interest rate were higher, the funds could be sought through the FHFA program.

"It seems to me that there is a great potential economy in this procedure," Lawrence said. "Fortunately, the plans for constructing new dormitories and for their financing are in the early stages, thus the time required—perhaps a month or so—to make a complete investigation of the possibility of federal help would not constitute a serious delay," he added.

Named to the committee were David H. Kurtzman, secretary of administration; A. J. Caruso, executive director; Warren W. Holmes, general counsel; Harold W. Alderfer, deputy superintendent of public instruction; and a deputy attorney general to be appointed by Atty. Gen. Anne X. Alpern.

Changes Requirements
In other business, the authority added $11,839,723 to its unallocated funds by changing its reserve requirement. The authority had been reserving 5 per cent of costs on both completed and uncompleted projects.

The staff reported bond counsel advised that the 5 per cent reserve on complete projects may be released and the reserve on projects now uncompleted could be released as they are finished.

Lawrence Hopes 'Jack' Covers All Of Keystone

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. David L. Lawrence said Tuesday he hopes to have Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy carry his campaign to the four corners of the Commonwealth.

Discussing Democratic plans for the election campaign, Lawrence told his weekly news conference he also hoped to schedule speaking tours for vice presidential nominee Lyndon B. Johnson, Adlai E. Stevenson, former President Harry Truman and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

The governor said Kennedy definitely would be in Harrisburg Sept. 15 for the kick-off dinner. "We hope to use him on the next day in some of the surrounding counties," he added.

Lawrence said he wants to have the Massachusetts senator make an appearance in Pittsburgh, then "cover some of these western counties" en route to another rally in Erie. He also said party leaders were planning for Kennedy to visit Philadelphia and go into the northeastern counties.

Questioned about his own participation in the campaign, the governor said he would "fit in wherever I can."

"I will do as much as I can while doing my job here," he added.

Catch Speeders
Radar—Lawrence said he would try to get the 1961 session of the Legislature to legalize the use of radar to catch and prosecute speeders.

State police have been using radar on limited sections of state highways to pick out speeding motorists for warnings.

"I think we have done some good with it already," Lawrence said.

Administration officials said there has been a noticeable decrease in speeding on Route 30 between Gettysburg and Philadelphia where radar is in use. They said there have been no serious accidents on the hundred-mile stretch of three-lane road since the experiment was started last July 1.

Legislation—"Ask the Republicans" about chances of final adjournment of the Legislature, Lawrence told newsmen. "They can decide it very quickly."

State Employment—Lawrence said State Treasurer Robert F. Kent's statement claiming the administration had increased the number of state employees "boomeranged a little bit."

"He was getting up a campaign document and he dumped in everything he could. And he made a mistake," Lawrence said.

Payroll Up
Kent, Republican candidate for auditor general, last week said the state payroll had increased to 76,245. Russell D. Johnson, state personnel director, said the figure was 72,283.

In Altoona where he spoke at a club luncheon, Kent told newsmen he could not explain the difference between his figures and the administration figures but said he was standing by his.

Kent added that he released the figures to show the public how big state government has grown. "We could do with less employees," he said.
